

LOWDEN ATTACKS SOCIALIST PLANS

Illinois Governor in New York Address Expounds Views.

COMMUNISM IS PLAYED

Initiative and Referendum Are Assailed; Draws Lessons From Pilgrims.

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, a candidate for the republican presidential nomination in an address here tonight attacked socialism and communism. The former of these doctrines, he declared, was simply a new name for the old doctrine of the Pilgrim fathers to found a socialist community, although conditions at Plymouth Rock favored a communist state.

Speaking at the New England society forefathers dinner, Governor Lowden also criticized the initiative, referendum and recall as inappropriate to the larger, modern state. He declared the pilgrims had found it necessary to supplant pure democracy by representative government the moment the community grew too large for its members to meet and conduct. He further argued from the experiences of the pilgrims that the individual worker must be rewarded in proportion to his merit, that organized labor must break out of some place, whereby the superior worker shall have a larger reward than the slacker, and that "bureaucracy" in the planning and management of enterprises cannot be left out of account as one of the indispensable factors of production.

Governor Lowden said the trend toward centralization of all authority and power at Washington strikes at the very foundation of the government, but that this was inevitable if municipalities and states shirked their responsibilities and called upon the federal government for assistance in times of stress.

He praised Governor Coolidge and the people of Massachusetts for their action during the police strike in Boston and said that the municipalities must learn to govern, itself when lawlessness appears.

His criticism of communism and other class organizations calling for troops, should organize themselves into defensive forces and defend their services to the peace of the world, he said.

and take effort at compromise. The divisions of each nation on the treaty multiplied many senators declaring action was likely before the end of January.

Some See Collapse.
There were other senators, however, who took long stock in the compromise measure, predicting that if due time it would collapse like all of its forerunners. It was pointed out that President Wilson might again intercede if reservations accepted by members of his party in the senate did not meet with his approval.

For the present, however, there was every indication that senators would go ahead with their compromise negotiations without further light from the white house. Senator Hitt-speak said he had no appointment with the president and indicated that he did not intend to seek one.
